Manners and Culture

Q: What does the name "America" mean?

A: It's a mapmaker's mistake. Back in the age of exploration, there was an Italian explorer named Amerigo Vespucci. A mapmaker in the 16th Century mistook the label on a trace of his route to the new world as a label for the new world, and the mistake has been duplicated ever since. Some historians dispute this account, but it's still among the most widely credited theories.

Q: Why do Americans ignore grammar rules when speaking?

A: Nearly everyone does, to some extent. This is how we create slang and idiom and how language evolves over time. Language is not a static, unchanging thing. It lives because it's spoken by a nearly infinite variety of people with a nearly infinite variety of thoughts and ideas. Think about it. When you speak in your native language with your friends, does it sound exactly like the language you are formally taught in school? Does it sound like the exact same language that your grandparents or even your parents use when they speak to their friends? My motto is, learn the rules and then learn how to break them, so you can sound more like a native speaker!

Grammar

Q: What does the future perfect express?

A: That one action will be completed before a fixed point or another action in the future. Look at the examples below. Which action happens first?

- I will have sent a message to my friends by the time I get to my country.
- The essay will have been finished when I get to class tomorrow.
