Absences and Tardies

Students have been asking questions about absences and tardies. Here are some reminders and answers to some FAQs. If you have questions, be sure to talk to Christine or check your student guide to read the full ELI attendance policy. Do not ask your friends... that is how rumors get started!

Class attendance is a requirement of the U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) for F-1 visa holders. It is also required by the ELI. If you arrive to class late, you will be marked tardy. Three tardies equals one absence. You are considered late as soon as the class time starts, and your teacher begins teaching. Students and teachers are expected to arrive in the classroom several minutes before the start of class so that the teacher can start on time. If you miss more than 20 minutes of a class for any reason, you will be marked absent.

There are no “excused” absences at the ELI. If you are not physically in the class, your teachers MUST mark you absent, no matter what the reason. However, if you have a good reason for being absent (you are ill or are celebrating a religious holiday, for example), your teachers will let you make up the work you missed. If you will be absent for a religious holiday, you must let your teachers know in advance.

There are many good reasons you might not be able to attend class, but because 35 hours is like missing 7 full days of class, this should give you plenty of time to do things like make appointments, stay home if you are ill, or celebrate religious holidays. You also have many days when there are not classes: 6/12, 6/19, 6/26-6/30, and 7/4.

Here are the answers to some FAQs:

- If I bring a doctor’s note to Christine, can she erase my absences?
 - o No. It is impossible to “erase” absences at the ELI. However, you should save any doctors notes or other documentation of your absences in case you go over 15% and want to petition to receive a certificate.
- If I attend all of the CIP activities, can it “balance out” my absences in class?
 - o No. Attendance at the CIP activities cannot make up for absences in class.
- I went to my class and put my backpack in my seat, but then I needed to answer a phone call, so went outside. Why did my teacher mark me absent, even though I was there on time?
 - o If you miss 20 minutes of a class, teachers must mark you absent, even if you are there on time. So, if you sat in class for 10 minutes, then you left for 15 minutes to talk on the phone, then you returned to the class for 10 minutes, then you stepped out to use the restroom and talk to your friend in the hallway for 5 minutes, then returned to class for the final 10 minutes, you would be marked absent.

- I was just 3 minutes late to class and the teacher was only reviewing the homework when I arrived. Why did he mark me tardy?
 - o Students are expected to be in class and paying attention at the start of the class time. Your teachers can mark you tardy any time after that.

- I missed more than 15% of my classes because I had an accident and was in the hospital. Can I still receive a certificate?
 - o Yes, if you saved your medical documentation, spoke to Christine about your situation, and told your teachers what was happening so you could make up your classwork, you can submit a petition to receive a certificate.

Do you have more questions about attendance at the ELI? Send them to ELI Weekly Editor, Todd Allen (toddy33@ufl.edu), and we will answer them for everyone in the Weekly!

Manners and Culture

Q: Why is public transportation poor in most American cities?

A: The United States is very wide and has a lot of open space. Many of the major cities outside of the Northeast and Upper Midwest became large cities after the invention of the automobile. These two factors created a need for a strong highway system, rather than a strong public transportation system as is common in older countries. Rising oil prices, increasingly clogged traffic, and damages to our environment are forcing us to reconsider these choices. In recent years, most cities with metropolitan populations in the US over about 2 million have put in at least light rail systems and dedicated bus lanes, if not new metro systems.

Q: Why don't the buses run at night on the weekends?

A: The bus routes are based on ridership and profits. During the week, all of the bus routes are busy and there are more bus routes. The more people that need a route, the more busses that run on that route. Not as many people ride the bus late at night on the weekends, so RTS doesn't offer as many routes because it would be a waste of resources.

Grammar

Q: What's the difference between "borrow" and "lend"?

A: It's the same as the difference between "take" and "give". You borrow something from someone. That someone lends it to you. Interestingly, we are involved in a shift in usage. The verb "lend" is rapidly disappearing and being replaced by what used to be exclusively the noun "loan".

- Can I borrow a pencil?
- Can you lend me a pencil?
- Can you loan me a pencil?
- Can I take a pencil?
- Can you give me a pencil?

Quote of the Week

The function of education is to teach one to think intensively and to think critically. Intelligence plus character - that is the goal of true education.
